The Election for Congressmen.

It is probably not known to many of oue addres that the law regulating the election of members of Congress has been changed by the present Congress, and that the people of Keutucky will be called upon to electheir Representatives to the Forty-firs Congress, on the day of the occurrence of the Presidential election, in November next. The object of the change in the law was to bring sbout uniformity in the election in the several States. Heretofore, some of the States elected in the fall before the expiration of a Congress, but in Kentucky and some other States, the practice has been to elect in the Augus following the expiration of a Congress. The consequence of this latter practice has been that on several occasions when extra session the old Congress expired, and Angust, when the elections occurred, there were no repre scutatives from such States, and it became necessary to hold special elections. This was our situation last year. The present law requires that the elections shall take place in all the States on the same day, in November
